Domestic violence court. Rod Zimmer did not instigate the threat charge: Defence attorney

A senator's young wife allegedly threatened to slit her husband's throat on an airplane, a Saskatchewan courtroom heard Wednesday.

More information about 23-year-old Maygan Sensenberger's alleged threat to her husband, Manitoba Senator Rod Zimmer, 69, surfaced in domestic violence court.

Sensenberger was arrested in Saskatoon last Thursday after police were asked to deal with a disruptive passenger on a flight to Saskatoon.

Crown prosecutor Matthew Miazga told court Sensenberger threatened to kill her husband and despite a number of "positive discussions" with the defence, they're not ready for a resolution.

Sensenberger's defence attorney, Leslie Sullivan, said Zimmer did not instigate the threat charge and said Zimmer "didn't in any way feel threatened."

However, prosecutors say the charge was a result of reports from witnesses.

Sullivan also cited the couple's high-profile life in Ottawa when trying to amend a no-contact order between the two.

"Quite frankly I don't care, nor should the court care," Miazga responded.

Both sides eventually agreed to let the couple speak to each other through email, telephone and online video messaging services like Skype.

However, direct and indirect contact is not allowed.

"It's been very difficult for them both, not being together," said Sullivan, adding the pair are not only romantically close, but good friends.

Sensenberger has yet to enter a plea. She is due back in court on Sept. 18.

Riders bolster D in hopes of snapping losing streak

Positive influence. Chamblin is confident wisdom of newly acquired vets will rub off on younger players

JEFF MACKEY

The Saskatchewan Roughriders are preparing for the Labour Day Classic against Winnipeg on Sunday.

The team — which has been winless the last five games — has decided to shake things up by adding some experience and depth to its defence.

Veteran linebackers Joe Lobendahn and Diamond Ferri have been added, as well as a rookie import defensive back Alonzo Lawrence. All three were officially signed on Wednesday.

At practice, head coach Corey Chamblin was pleased with the additions.

"Defence wins championships, so that is the biggest thing, if we can stop people in the hole then we will be good," said Chamblin.

Both Lobendahn and Ferri are experienced CFL players; the Riders are banking that this wisdom will rub off on some of the younger players on the team.

Lobendahn is expected to play against Winnipeg this weekend, but Ferri and Lawrence will have to wait a bit longer before they can crack the lineup.

"The biggest thing for Diamond (Ferri) right now is we need to make sure he gets acclimated to what we are doing and then he will be ready to go," said Chamblin.

Teammate dismissal

Hill sent hiking

The Riders have released receiver Efrem Hill from the team, opening up a space for some depth receivers to move into the lineup against Winnipeg.

"I told him 'you will land on your feet, you are a good player,'" Chamblin said of Hill. "But in order for me to see other guys play we have to make sure we are not too comfortable with what is around because this organization has to move forward."

Judge delays sentence for toddler killer

Family members of Raime Myers gather after an emotional day of hearing impact statements in court. Myers, an 18-month-old infant, was smothered in July 2009 by Jason Will. ROB BROWN/METRO

Jason Will must wait one more day to learn the length of his prison sentence for smothering 18-month-old Raime Myers to death in 2009.

Will, 25, sat twiddling his thumbs, picking food out of his teeth, eye-rolling, and adjusting a Beatles T-shirt over a bullet-proof vest Wednesday as victim impact statements were read in Regina provincial court.

Will was found guilty of manslaughter on Aug. 3 in relation to the July 9, 2009, death of toddler Raime Myers after court heard evidence that he caused a hypoxic brain injury to the infant when he smothered the boy. At the time, Will was engaged to Raime's mother, Jessica.

On Wednesday, Court of Queen's Bench judge Dennis Ball adjourned the sentencing hearing for 24 hours to further review submissions.

Seven victim impact statements were read aloud in court, each outlining the anger, violation, and anguish felt over both the death of Myers and ordeal of the subsequent three years.

Raime Myers' great grandmother, Betty Sproule, said since 2009 her great grandson has had no voice.

"He was killed before his second birthday," she said.

"My thoughts wander to the pain and terror (he felt) as he was being abused," she added.

"I saw the bruises and where they were on him. Raime must have thought he was trapped by a monster."

Sproule said forgiveness of Will wasn't something she wished to pursue. "To be forgiven there must be remorse — there is none here."

Crown prosecutor Connie Hottinger asked Ball to sentence Will to 10 years in jail, while defence attorney Carson Demmans suggested a four- to six-year sentence would be appropriate. Ball said he wanted time to go over submissions in further detail.

The hearing reconvenes in Regina provincial court at 2 p.m. Thursday. ROB BROWN/METRO

La Ronge

Repeat vaccines advised due to power outage

Several people who received a vaccination in La Ronge, Sask., this summer are being asked to repeat the immunization because a power outage may have affected the quality of the vaccine.

The Mamawetan Churchill River Health Region says the advisory is a precaution and covers 19 people given shots for tetanus, diphtheria and whooping cough at the La Ronge Health Centre.

The vaccinations were done after a prolonged power outage in June.

Andrew McLetchie, the health region's CEO, says refrigeration in the hospital's emergency and acute-care areas was affected when an emergency power supply failed to kick in.

The advisory does not cover people who received vaccinations from the centre's public health office.

McLetchie says the vaccine given to the 19 people won't harm them, but it may not be effective. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ryan takes turn in spotlight

Romney's running mate. He's a hero of the right, but Dems loathe him: Will this man change the dynamics of the U.S. presidential race?

Republican vice-presidential candidate Paul Ryan gestures Wednesday night ahead of his speech to the Republican convention in Tampa, Fla.
MARY ALTAFFER/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Call him the man of the moment.

Congressman Paul Ryan, a hero to conservatives and lightning rod for Democrats, was taking centre-stage Wednesday night at the Republican National Convention.

His assignment: accepting the party's nomination to be Mitt Romney's vice-presidential running mate in the campaign to defeat President Barack Obama.

Ryan's major speech on the second day of the storm-shortened convention was to be a debut of sorts for the 42-year-old from the Midwestern state of Wisconsin.

Though a leader on budget policy in Congress, Ryan was not well-known outside Washington when tapped by Romney this month.

But he brings to the ticket youthful energy and a down-to-earth appeal lacking in the stiffer Romney.

Democrats, however, pounced on the nomination, saying Romney was now clearly wedded to Ryan's proposals to cut spending by revamping health care programs for the elderly and poor.

In excerpts released ahead of the speech, Ryan lauded Romney, saying the former Massachusetts governor "will not duck the tough issues" if he wins the White House.

"After four years of getting the runaround, America needs a turnaround, and the man for the job is Governor Mitt Romney," he said.

So far, Ryan has not changed the dynamics of the presidential race.

Polls continue to show Romney and Obama in a statistical tie ahead of the November vote.

The economy is the biggest issue in the race. While voters have more confidence in Romney on economic matters, they like Obama better on a personal level.

A poll by the Pew Research Center and the Washington Post found Americans deeply divided about Ryan, whom they described as conservative, intelligent, fake and phoney.

Romney left Tampa briefly to speak Wednesday before a major veterans group, the American Legion. He said Obama "has allowed our leadership to diminish."

Haircut attack left Amish cleric ashamed: Son

Amish men leave the Cleveland court. TONY DEJAK/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A hair-cutting attack on an Amish bishop left him so ashamed that he stopped preaching and refused to attend a family wedding, his son testified Wednesday.

The 77-year-old father didn't want anyone to see him without his beard, the son told a court.

Andy Hershberger was testifying at the Cleveland trial of 16 Amish men and women accused of hate crimes on church leaders.

In the minutes after the surprise encounter last fall, Hershberger said he looked toward his father, Raymond Hershberger. Grey clumps of hair from the beard his father had grown since marriage covered the floor.

"He was shaking all over," Hershberger said.

"He was crying and crying."

Federal prosecutors say that a dispute between the leader of a breakaway Amish group and other bishops who sought to overrule his authoritarian methods led to the hair- and -beard cutting attacks that struck fear into Ohio's normally peaceful Amish community.

Those accused of planning and taking part in the attacks targeted the hair and beards of Amish bishops because of the spiritual significance of them in the faith, prosecutors said.

Most Amish men do not shave their beards after marriage, believing it signifies their devotion to God.

All of the defendants could face lengthy prison terms if convicted on charges that include conspiracy and obstructing justice.

Lawyers for the defendants say that members of the breakaway group took action out of compassion and concern that some Amish were straying from their beliefs.

"He's sorry and he wished he hadn't done it," attorney Pierre Bazile said.

Aron wore a black yarmulke, bushy beard and orange prison jumpsuit, and kept his head down and eyes closed.

His attorneys said Aron suffered a head injury as a child that went untreated.

Exactly 7 years after Katrina, Louisiana lashed again by Isaac

Floodwaters. Rescue workers flock to New Orleans and rural communities to help stranded residents

Isaac continued to lash New Orleans with heavy rains Wednesday even as it was downgraded from a hurricane to a tropical storm, as a newly-fortified levee system appeared to be holding exactly seven years after Hurricane Katrina devastated the city. In a drenched part of rural Louisiana, rescuers on boats snatched dozens of people stranded by floodwaters.

In New Orleans, power lines were downed and debris littered the streets, prompting officials to impose a dusk-to-dawn curfew. Louisiana officials said they may have to intentionally breach a levee in a flooded area as Isaac made a slow, drenching slog inland from the Gulf of Mexico.

In a hard-hit rural area southeast of New Orleans, officials rescued dozens of people by boat, while authorities feared more in Plaquemines Parish could need help after a night of lashing rain and fierce winds that knocked out power to more than 700,000 households.

The hurricane also cancelled commemoration ceremonies Wednesday for Katrina's 1,800 dead in Louisiana and Mississippi. Isaac was testing a New Orleans levee system bolstered by $14 billion in federal repairs and improvements after the catastrophic failures during Katrina.

Army Corps spokeswoman Rachel Rodi said the city's bigger, stronger levees were withstanding the assault.

"The system is performing as intended, as we expected," she said. "We don't see any issues with the hurricane system at this point."

Rescuers in boats and trucks plucked a handful of people who became stranded by floodwaters in thinly populated areas of southeast Louisiana.

Although Isaac was much weaker than Katrina, the threat of dangerous storm surges and flooding from heavy rain was expected to last all day and into the night as the immense comma-shaped storm crawled across Louisiana state.

Water driven by the large and powerful storm flooded over a 30-kilometre stretch of one levee in Plaquemines Parish. The levee, one of many across the low-lying coastal zone, is not part of the new defences constructed in New Orleans after Katrina.

The storm not only coincided with the Katrina anniversary, but also the first major speeches of the Republican National Convention in Tampa, Florida. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thousands told to leave low-lying areas

Political implications

Natural disaster creates chances for both parties

Isaac also posed political challenges with echoes of those that followed Katrina, a reminder of how the storm became a symbol of government ineptitude.

U.S. President Barack Obama sought to demonstrate his ability to guide the nation through a natural disaster and Republicans tried to reassure residents as they formally nominated former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney as their presidential candidate.

Louisiana's Republican Gov. Bobby Jindal, who cancelled his trip to the Republican National Convention in Tampa, said the Obama administration's disaster declaration fell short of the federal help he had requested. Jindal said he wanted a promise from the federal government to be reimbursed for storm preparation costs. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Action. Flood levee will be breached in rural town

A state official says the levee in southeast Louisiana's Isaac-flooded Plaquemines Parish will be breached to relieve pressure on it.

State Coastal Protection and Restoration Authority head Garret Graves says the levee won't be breached Wednesday because of weather conditions but it will happen as soon as they can get equipment to the site.

In hard-hit Plaquemines Parish, officials rescued dozens of people by boat after they became stranded by floodwaters. Flooding has plagued the area after Isaac sloshed ashore Tuesday evening as a Category 1 hurricane. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Weathered city. Katrina memorial disrupted, but not New Orleans' faith

The hurricane promised to lend even more solemnity to commemoration ceremonies Wednesday for Katrina's 1,800 dead in Louisiana and Mississippi, including the tolling of the bells at St. Louis Cathedral overlooking New Orleans' Jackson Square.

In a city that has already weathered Hurricane Gustav in 2008, many people had faith that new repairs and improvements would hold up.

"I feel safe," said Pamela Young, who was riding out the storm in the Lower 9th Ward with her dog, Princess, in a new, two-story home built to replace one destroyed by Katrina.

"If the wind isn't too rough, I can stay right here," she said, tapping on her wooden living room coffee table. "If the water comes up, I can go upstairs."

New Orleans Mayor Mitch Landrieu issued a curfew for the city as Isaac lashed the city on the seven-year anniversary of Katrina's destructive arrival. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Trash the dress. Death has some questioning photo shoot bridal fad

A photo shoot in a Quebec river that went horribly wrong when a bride was dragged into the water and drowned is shining a light on the growing "trash-the-dress" phenomenon.

Maria Pantazopoulos, a 30-year-old real-estate agent, was posing in her wedding dress Friday for a photo shoot along the Ouareau River in Rawdon, Que., about 60 kilometres north of Montreal, when her gown became waterlogged and dragged her into the water. Her body was found by a scuba diver two hours later.

Photographer Louis Pagakis said he did everything he could to save Pantazopoulos when she went under.

"She had her wedding dress on and she said, 'Take some pictures of me while I swim a little bit in the lake.' She went in and her dress got heavy, I tried everything I could to save her," Pagakis told CTV Montreal. "I jumped in, I was screaming and yelling. We tried our best."

The tragedy has highlighted some of the more unorthodox — and even unsafe — situations in which brides and grooms will put themselves as part of this increasingly popular form of photography. The trash-the-dress meme aims to capture images of brides and grooms, dressed in their wedding attire, in fantastical situations or exotic locales.

A ritual begun several years ago as novelty photography akin to that found only in the pages of fashion magazines, trash the dress has grown in popularity thanks in part to the unconventional wedding work of Las Vegas photographer John Michael Cooper, whose famous image of a bride nearly enveloped in her burning gown pushed expectations.
TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Not really trash

According to Matt Boyce, owner of Xero Digital Photography in Toronto, the term "trash the dress" is a bit of a misnomer. While gowns do get wet and dirty during shoots, most of the brides he has photographed intend to keep their dresses — but not before having a bit of fun.

Economist doubts 'dead money' claim

BoC. Carney made too much of $526B held in reserve by corporations, says TD Bank's Craig Alexander

When Bank of Canada governor Mark Carney called $526 billion in corporate cash "dead money," he was overstating the facts, a chief economist of a major Canadian bank says.

Businesses have been a major contributor to the economic recovery from the recession, TD Bank chief economist Craig Alexander wrote in a note to clients Wednesday.

Companies have created 80 per cent of the 721,700 new jobs since mid-2009, while business investment in machinery and equipment is just 2.3 per cent below its pre-recession peak.

"It is true that firms have increased their holdings of cash, but calling all of it dead money is overstated," Alexander wrote.

Having said that, Alexander also agreed that Canadian companies need to do more to boost the country's competitiveness.

"The simple truth is that, at the economy-wide level, businesses underinvested prior to the recession and they cannot let the prevailing risks paralyze them from investing in the coming quarters. They have to build for the future."

Other reports have said paying the excess out to investors in the form of higher dividends may not do much to boost the economy. Most shareholders are reinvesting their dividends to boost their retirement nest eggs rather than using the money to buy things, Stéfane Marion, chief economist of the National Bank of Canada, wrote in a recent commentary for clients.

Sentencing. Tech-file thief nets 4 years in jail

A Chinese-born American convicted of stealing trade secrets from Motorola was sentenced Wednesday to four years in prison in a case that both the judge and prosecutors hoped would send a message to those who might be tempted to siphon vital information from U.S. companies.

"In today's world, the most valuable thing that anyone has is technology.... The most important thing this country can do is protect its trade secrets," U.S. District Judge Ruben Castillo said before sentencing Hanjuan Jin.

Jin, who worked as a software engineer for Motorola Inc. for nine years, was stopped during a random security search at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport on Feb. 28, 2007, before she could board a flight to China. Prosecutors say she was carrying $31,000 and hundreds of confidential Motorola documents, many stored on a laptop, four external hard drives, thumb drives and other devices. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BMO study. Canadians more optimistic about job security this Labour Day

A new Labour Day survey suggests Canadians are more optimistic this year about their job security as well as hiring and growth prospects at their companies — and many expect a raise.

The Bank of Montreal poll finds nearly two-thirds, or 64 per cent, of respondents are comfortable with their job security.

The survey suggests 41 per cent believe their company is growing and will be hiring.

Both measures are up 13 percentage points from the number of employees who expressed confidence last Labour Day. And 39 per cent expect a promotion or raise this year, up 11 percentage points from last year.

Modest raises

"Canadians should expect wages to rise modestly faster than inflation ... with the strongest gains in Alberta and Saskatchewan."
BMO senior economist Sal Guatieri

The results come despite lingering economic uncertainty, a still high unemployment rate and a disappointing report showing the economy shed jobs in July.

The Canadian economy shed a surprisingly steep 30,400 jobs last month, which pushed the unemployment rate up a tenth of a point to 7.3 per cent. It was the first major hit in nearly a year for what had been a mostly positive employment record.

And the economy has been growing at a rate below two per cent since last fall.

In the future every soup can will be famous for 15 minutes

New limited edition Campbell's tomato soup cans with art and sayings by artist Andy Warhol are seen at Campbell Soup Company in Camden, N.J.
MEL EVANS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Campbell Soup is tapping Andy Warhol for another 15 minutes of fame.

The world's biggest soup maker plans to introduce special-edition cans of its condensed tomato soup bearing labels reminiscent of the pop artist's paintings at Target stores starting Sunday. The 1.2 million cans will cost 75 cents each.

The Campbell Soup Co.'s embracing of Warhol's iconic imagery is a switch from its initial reaction, when the company considered taking legal action before deciding to see how the paintings were received by the public.

"There's some evidence to show there was a little bit of concern," said Jonathon Thorn, an archivist for Campbell Soup. "But they decided to take a wait-and-see approach."

By 1964, however, the company realized the paintings were becoming a phenomenon and embraced the depictions. Campbell's marketing manager even sent Warhol a letter expressing admiration for his work.

"I have since learned that you like Tomato Soup," William MacFarland wrote in the letter. "I am taking the liberty of having a couple cases of our Tomato Soup delivered to you."

The latest promotion comes as Campbell looks to turn around its struggling soup business after years of declining sales. The company plans to introduce dozens of new products this year.

The cans to be sold at Target will come in four colour schemes, with famed Warhol quote such as "In the future everybody will be world famous for 15 minutes."

BACK-TO-SCHOOL WITH BOOZE AND BREATHALYZERS

HE SAYS...
John Mazerolle
metronews.ca/voices/he-says

I find back-to-school easier than most.

Some people might say that's because I'm not going to school and I have no children, but "phooey on them," as the kids say.

I prefer to think my distance from the chaos provides me with perspective, the same way any given person yelling at the TV could do a better job with the Blue Jays than the paid personnel up close who can only focus on one torn ligament at a time.

For instance, a back-to-school detail I've noticed that's eluded some in the mall-strom is how most shopping lists this time of year focus solely on the student.

But what about the parents' needs?

There are already dozens of columns out there about what kids must have, so here's a look at what moms and dads should buy for a seamless return to 10 months of the ABCs (Angst, Bullying and Confusion).

Grade school:

You need:

- A pre-recording of Carson Daly interviewing Dr. Sanjay Gupta, in case they won't go to bed. Tell them this is what all late-night TV is like.
- The Busdrivalyzer, for overprotective parents — allows you to make sure that the driver on the bus blows clean, clean, clean.
- A pre-written "You're going to have the time of your life!" speech for when you get the urge to tell your children that school is 12 years of emotional and physical violence and run, kid, run break the connected mitten strings and run!

Middle school:

You need:

- A sideways ball cap and a compact disc with an explicit lyrics sticker on it, to let your kids know that you're with it. If you work out a little rap like, "It might seem cool/But a bully is a straight-up fool," your child will remember it forever.
- A kitchen switch that allows you to turn the shower to 'icy cold' after 15 minutes or when the steam sets off the fire alarm, whichever comes first.
- A pre-written, vaguely worded "birds and bees" speech for when you get the urge to say, look kid, the idea of explaining sex to you is just as gross and disturbing to me as it is to you, so ask that Emily girl you like or something.

High school:

- If you would like your child to answer with more than "nothing" when you ask about school, then you'll need, at minimum, the rack. If you want more than "It was fine and they didn't give any homework," an iron maiden.
- An ejection seat that allows you to let your child out in front of their school while driving 100 km/h, thus avoiding embarrassment for the student.
- A pre-written, "You can be whatever you set your mind to!" speech for when you get the urge to say, "You can do whatever you set your mind to provided it fits your socio-economic status, gender, race, last name, the public's perception of you, and then you get incredibly lucky!"

All ages:

- Booze. But you knew that.

It's back-to-school time, which means an expert, i.e. a Metro columnist, has the best advice. You might want to take notes. ISTOCK

La Tomatina makes a gushy scene

ALBERTO SAIZ/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Running red

Spanish city turns to tomato warfare

Revellers kiss each other during the annual Tomatina tomato fight in the village of Bunol, Spain, Wednesday.

At this time of year, the town hosts one of the largest food fights in the world, with 40,000 people gathering to throw more than 100 tonnes of tomatoes at each other. The tradition has stood since 1945 and is embraced by locals and tourists. METRO

What did this stem from?

"We don't have much space, but there is no other way."

Coun. Rafael Perez, festival spokesman, acknowledges the chaotic nature of La Tomatina. However, the prestige and tourism the town gains from the events should secure its future.

Make your own Tomatina

- Swimming costume and goggles. You will be grateful for the goggles when you get hit in the face, and a snorkel makes breathing easier.
- Get it started. Organizer has the honour of hurling the first load of fruit at assembled friends.
- Play fair. Squash the tomato in your hand before throwing as it can cause serious damage otherwise.

Country musicians the best for Beggs, no question

Country radio star. This year's Canadian Country Music Awards host will first need her Timmies

BACKSTAGE PASS
Simon Hiatt
saskatoon@metronews.ca

The Bull's Cristy Beggs has become one of the best known radio personalities in the province. SIMON HIATT/FOR METRO

Colonsay native, Cristy Beggs has a simple explanation for why she chose to pursue a career in radio broadcasting.

"This is the coolest thing I can do, having no talent of my own," said Beggs, with a laugh.

Modest self-assessment notwithstanding, Beggs has become a tremendously popular radio personality and a relative rarity in the somewhat nomadic world of local media personalities.

She has worked for the same company, Saskatoon Media Group and its country music stations, her entire career since graduating from Western Academy Broadcasting College 13 years ago.

Her association with the stations goes back even further than the day she was hired, however. While growing up in the small town of Colonsay, Beggs worked in her parents' restaurant where the radio was always tuned to CJWW.

"The crowd in the restaurant would go silent when Boots and Salutes would come on, and it was the most eerie feeling in the world," said Beggs.

"I'd try to offer them more coffee and they'd shush me! And I thought, 'Fine, get your own coffee.'"

Beggs successfully transitioned from having her work interrupted by some of the most legendary names in Saskatchewan radio like Rod Kitter and Steve Shannon, to working alongside them. She says her colleagues are one of the big reasons she's remained in the position so long.

Lovin' that country music

"The crowd in the restaurant would go silent when Boots and Salutes would come on, and it was the most eerie feeling in the world."

Christy Beggs, on working at her parents' restaurant where they were always tuned to the country station.

"The guys took me in right away and taught me what they knew. They were so sweet."

Now a veteran of the country music scene herself, Beggs believes that attitude is much more the norm than the exception among those associated with the genre, including the artists.

"There's some really great people in country music, and I haven't worked with any other genres, but I'm imagining that country performers have the best attitudes," said Beggs.

People in Saskatchewan will have the opportunity to judge for themselves soon enough, as some of the biggest names in the industry will be here for the upcoming Canadian Country Music Association Awards.

Beggs will have her hands full leading up to the event and while she's been to five of the past six CCMAs, she knows this will be something different.

"Just getting to witness it and then host it, it's going to be two different ball games," Beggs said.

"Getting to be at all of the events, it's like 'OK, you're going to emcee here, and then five minutes later I need you to run here to introduce someone, and then you're going to do interviews here.' I'm really looking forward to it, but there will be a lot of Tim Hortons products consumed by me in those days."

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

Robert Pattinson ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Home, sad home for Robert Pattinson

Robert Pattinson is reportedly selling the Los Angeles mansion he shared with Kristen Stewart, according to Us Weekly. The Twilight star is looking to unload the property because "he said there are too many memories," a source says. But while he may be dropping the property, Pattinson isn't necessarily through with Stewart, despite her infidelity. "Rob doesn't hate her and he's not mad," the source says. "He just doesn't get why she did it. He loves her and thinks about her constantly."

Taylor Swift

Taylor acts swiftly in whirlwind romance

Taylor Swift has spent her summer dating Conor Kennedy, the 18-year-old grandson of Bobby Kennedy, and she's reportedly so smitten with him that she can't stand for them to be apart. Swift recently returned to Nashville for work and, barely a week later, flew Kennedy down on a private jet to join her because she "missed Conor so much," according to Page Six. "He's been with her ever since, and his family doesn't know when he'll be back," a source says. "Things have become so serious between them so fast that no one in Hyannis Port would be surprised if they eloped."

Lohan gets the boot from Chateau Marmont

THE WORD
Monica Weymouth
scene@metronews.ca

Lindsay Lohan almost had a good day yesterday. After it looked like she was all but headed back to jail for swiping $100,000 worth of jewelry at a house party, the L.A. County District Attorney decided not to prosecute her. Unfortunately, the Chateau Marmont — the swanky hotel she's called home since May — decided to kick her out.

In an eviction notice obtained by TMZ, general manager Philip Pavel takes issue with the $46,350 bill the actress has managed to rack up. "As we have made repeated attempts to resolve this pressing matter over the last few weeks without any resolution, I regret to inform you that we will no longer be able to extend any further credit for you to remain in the hotel," he writes.

Pavel goes on to add a little comedic flair: "I have adjusted off the daily $75 charge for computer rental for use of the hotel's laptop as a gesture of good faith, with the understanding that you will return the computer."

Also included with the letter is an itemized invoice of the charges, including $686 for cigarettes (to be fair, they were charging her $14 a pack) and $100 for a "Chateau Candle" — which we certainly hope is code for something much more exciting than a candle.

Katie Holmes

Surprise, surprise Suri's a trust-fund kid

While Katie Holmes will reportedly be getting $4.8 million in child support payments until Suri Cruise turns 18, the little girl herself stands to fare much better from her parents' divorce, according to Radar Online, as Holmes reportedly insisted that Tom Cruise set up a trust fund for Suri as part of the settlement. "Katie wanted the trust fund put in place for Suri so that their daughter will be able to tap into after she turns 18," a source says. "Katie has absolutely no access to the money and didn't want to. It's a sizable trust fund, but Suri won't be able to fully legally claim it until she is in her 30s.

Oprah

Oprah still the queen of celebrity pay cheques

Oprah Winfrey has retained her spot atop Forbes magazine's list of highest paid celebrities, pulling in a reported $165 million between May 2011 and May 2012. That's $125 million less than she made the previous year, but still enough to help her beat out Michael Bay, who comes in at No. 2 with $160 million. Steven Spielberg is third with $130 million, Jerry Bruckheimer is fourth with $115 million.

Junk food, without the junk

ROMINA McGUINNESS
Metro World News

"When it comes to food, it's either eating something that's healthy but without taste, or delicious and bad for us," nutritional therapist Jessica Bourke, author of the cookbook Guilt Free Gourmet, tells Metro, calling that a myth. "We need food to stay alive, but we also need to enjoy it."

She suggests avoiding dairy, sugar and wheat, and has devised recipes to eat well without them.

Dairy

Why you should cut it out

1 It's high in fat, which can cause weight gain.

2 That it's the best source of calcium is a myth. A green smoothie contains just as much calcium as a glass of milk.

3 Cow's milk contains the protein casein, needed to build the big bones of baby calves, not humans. Our body doesn't know what to do with the excess. It also prohibits the absorption of key nutrients including iron and vitamin B12.

Top alternative: Soy. Great for our gut. For women, it's good for their hormones. Go for miso soup, tempeh or tofu.

Sugar

Why you should cut it out

1 It encourages bad bacteria to grow in the gut, which can cause IBS (irritable bowel syndrome). In time, this can exteriorize itself on our skin and lead to conditions such as acne and eczema.

2 It causes chronic fatigue. Processed sugar has a damping down effect on the immune system. Two hours after ingestion, immune cell capacity is reduced by 50 per cent.

3 Processed sugar triggers a blood sugar imbalance that will eventually make you prone to weight gain and hormone problems.

Top alternative: Xylitol. It may sound chemical, but this natural sweetener is derived from the bark of a tree.

Wheat

Why you should cut it out

1 White bread contains calcium carbonate. In other words, chalk.

2 Gluten, a protein found in wheat, can attack and damage the gut cells. This can lead to a condition known as leaky gut syndrome whereby the intestinal lining becomes inflamed.

3 If our immune cells confuse gluten with a pathogen (an agent of disease) the body will attack itself.

Top alternative: Quinoa. Technically a seed, quinoa actually looks and tastes like a grain. Naturally gluten free, it doesn't cause bloating and contains essential amino acids. A bowl will curb your appetite for a while.

Recipe. Gluten, sugar and dairy free Polenta Pizza

1 Bring 1 litre of water to the boil and add the bouillon powder. Reduce the heat and slowly pour in the polenta whisking all the time until blended. Reduce the heat to its lowest setting add half the lemon zest and juice, 4 of the crushed garlic cloves, the thyme and a good pinch of salt and pepper and gently cook, stirring occasionally for about 45 minutes or until the polenta pulls away from the side of the pan and is very thick.

2 Meanwhile, bring another pan of water to the boil. Add 1 teaspoon of salt and boil the chard for about 3-4 minutes until the thick part is just tender. Remove, drain and season with some salt and oil (don't forget to stir the polenta). Heat two tablespoons of oil in another pan over high heat. Fry the mushrooms for about two minutes. Add 1 of the crushed garlic cloves and stir for 30 seconds to release the garlic flavour. Transfer to a bowl, toss with the parsley and season with salt, the remaining lemon zest and juice and some olive oil. When the polenta is ready, transfer to baking sheet and spread out to a thickness of about 2 cm. Cool for 30 min.

3 Preheat the grill. Scatter mushrooms and chard on polenta. Crack an egg in the middle and grill until egg is cooked. Pull leaves off the marjoram stalks and chop finely. Mix with the last crushed garlic clove and mix with oil to form a loose marjoram oil. Remove the polenta from the grill, and drizzle with the oil.

Ingredients

Serves 6
Cooking time: 1 hr 30 min (approx)

- 2 teaspoons of bouillon stock powder
- 200 g polenta
- Grated zest and juice of 1 lemon
- 6 garlic cloves, crushed sea salt and ground black pepper
- 1 tablespoon fresh thyme leaves
- 1 head of Swiss chard
- Extra virgin olive oil
- 200 g girolle mushrooms
- 1 tablespoon freshly chopped parsley
- 1 egg
- Bunch of fresh marjoram

The very best fall/winter trends at New York International Gift Fair

Design centre. These home and gift products will soon be on the store shelves for your purchasing pleasure

DESIGN CENTRE
Karl Lohnes
home@metronews.ca

Twice each year the Javits Center in New York City is packed with the latest and greatest in lamps, rugs, salad bowls and more as the New York International Gift Fair displays housewares to thousands of retail store buyers.

I took a peek around this trade-only event and checked out the latest buys being offered up to retailers for the fall/winter season.

Here's three of the biggest trends.

Seventies Marrakech

The geometrics of the 1970's took a sophisticated turn this season by incorporating richer trend colours that resembled patterns often found in Moroccan textiles, rugs and ceramics. Zig-zag, fish scales and tile work were three hot looks, and famed designer Jonathan Adler nailed all three looks with his Carnaby collection of lamps, trays and mugs. Carnaby Large Flame, Scale and Taletha lamps, $340 each. micasatoronto.com.

Feeling blue

One of the old-time decorator classics has been given resurgence in the contemporary world and many hip exhibitors were showing products that resembled blue-and-white porcelain. This colour combination looks great with neutrals and can hold its own against strong bursts of colour. Seletti's Sextuple playfully extends the porcelain plate into useful wall art or a tray. $1,200. mintinteriors.ca.

Linen with sparkle

Natural linen was everywhere at the show; on furniture upholstery, pillows, bedding and tabletop linens. Threads of metallic, shiny trims and adornments helped to decorate this rather plain, humble fabric. The most outstanding use of linen were companies like Ann Gish (maker of high-end luxurious bedding) who incorporated a hand-painted look of shimmer or sparkle into the linen. 'Gorgeous' bedding by Ann Gish, from $400 to 1,800. anngish.com.

Wireless & paperless

Computers and tablets. Top selections to stay on top of your studies this school year

Apple iPad — $519 and up.

Asus Transformer Pad — $369.

MIKE YAWNEY
For Metro

Computers and tablets are quickly replacing pens and paper in the classroom. In fact, some schools are now making them a requirement. Here are some of the best picks for your student heading back to class.

Samsung Series 9 Ultrabook — $1,499

Samsung's Series 9 ultrabook is designed to impress. This new breed of laptop sports a beautiful sand-blasted aluminum finish and is only 0.6 inches thick. You will never miss taking notes at the start of a lecture again as it holds the record for the fastest start-up time of any laptop at just 8.4 seconds.

MacBook Air — $1,029 and up

Backpacks are heavy enough without weighing them down with a hefty laptop. Apple's MacBook Air lives up to its name as it weighs only 2.38 pounds. Next-generation Flash storage means there are no moving parts so your laptop remains quiet while in class. The MacBook Air also features aThunderbolt port along with two USB 3 ports to ensure ultra-fast data transfers.

Nexus 7 Tablet — $209 and up

When it comes to tablets, cheaper isn't always better, but somehow Google has managed to create a high-performance device that's easy on the wallet. This tablet, co-developed with Asus, features a Tegra 3 quad-core processor that results in incredible performance. The Nexus 7 has a seven-inch screen so you can easily hold it with one hand. You will also have tens of thousands of apps to choose from through Google Play.

Asus Transformer Pad — $369

Designed for those who aren't completely sold on the idea of a touch-screen tablet. This HD tablet can be snapped into an optional keyboard dock, turning it into a laptop. The top-notch quad-core processor ensures quality performance while providing a stellar 15-hour battery.

Apple iPad — $519 and up

You can't deny the clarity of the new iPad's Retina display. With one million more pixels than your HDTV, text is crisp, clean, and easy to read, just as if you were reading a paperback book. With more and more educational institutes making courses available through iTunes U, the iPad is an easy choice for students looking for a premium tablet.

HP Omni 27 — $1,299

All-in-one computers are quickly becoming the popular choice since they take up less space than traditional tower style computers. The HP Omni features a whopping 27-inch screen that can be wall mounted to give you more space on your desk. The wireless keyboard and mouse keep your work area nice and tidy. This computer also features Beats audio stereo speakers plus HDMI port and an optional TV tuner so you can use it for both homework and entertainment.

Clockwise, from top, MacBook Air — $1,029 and up, Samsung Series 9 Ultrabook — $1,499, HP Omni 27 — $1,299, and Nexus 7 Tablet — $209 and up.

ASTRID VAN DEN BROEK
For Metro

It's so easy to get caught up in back to school shopping, isn't it?

As Toronto-based Walmart Canada's Back to School Pulse Check report discovered, nearly 52 per cent of respondents noted they make multiple trips to multiple stores to shop for supplies and spend an average $190 per child.

So, what do you need to know for back to school shopping this fall? Metro asked some larger retailers to fill us in on top trends for kids and parents to stock up for school.

Licensing Is Hot

Think Angry Birds, boy band One Direction, Hello Kitty and superheroes of many colours feature prominently on a variety of school items. "Licenses are popular across the board from pencil cases to lunch bags to backpacks," says Carmelo Ragusa, senior category manager, stationary for Walmart Canada.

Personalized Is Popular

Whether it's buying pre-personalized items with their names on them or putting their stamp on their binders, kids want to leave their mark on their school supplies. "One trend we're seeing emerge is customization and personalization — so being able to doodle on your binder," says Ragusa. "There are binders out there right now that are doing really well where kids can do their own artwork on their binders with their own names and pictures."

Top, Barbie backpack, $10, four-piece backpack, above, $8.44, both available at Walmart, walmart.ca.

All-In-One Kits

Steve Grebenc, a general manager for a west end Toronto-based Staples Canada, notes one of its popular sellers includes The Kit from Dudley, which features a dry erase marker and board, calendar, mirror, cork board with thumb tacks and a Dudley combination lock. This year retailers are packaging kits and deals that include a matching backpack, lunch bag, pencil case and sometimes even water bottle.

Don't Forget Tech Accessories

For older students, tech accessories are fun as well — think USB keys with characters such as the Simpsons or Family Guy, or ear buds to listen to music while doing homework over lunch. Grebenc notes that ear buds are also having fun with design — Crayola's ear buds, for instance, look like a broken crayon is going through the wearer's head.

Watch For The Jungle

Jungle and animal prints continue to be popular on brightly coloured cases and binders — think zebra and other animal prints.

Recharged Escobar powers Jays to win

MLB. Shortstop has been hitting well since birth of child. By beating Yankees, Toronto gets first series win since July

Wednesday's game

Blue Jays	Yankees

Yunel Escobar got a much-needed break last week when he took three days off for the birth of his child.

It's made all the difference.

Escobar hit a two-run homer, three doubles and drove in five runs as Toronto beat the New York Yankees 8-5 Wednesday, ending CC Sabathia's five years of dominance over the Blue Jays.

The light-hitting shortstop went 15 games without getting more than a single before he went on the paternity list. In the four games back he has six for extra bases.

"At the time of the birth he was a little frustrated with how he was performing but that three-day break allowed him to relax and come back with a more positive mindset," injured slugger Jose Bautista said, translating for Escobar.

Escobar had a go-ahead RBI double in the third. His homer against Sabathia in the sixth gave the Blue Jays the lead again and his two-run double off Joba Chamberlain in the ninth helped secure Toronto's first series win since July 27-29. The five RBIs matched a career high for Escobar.

J.A. Happ (3-1) overcame a season-high five walks, including an intentional pass of Derek Jeter to load the bases with one out in the fourth inning, for the Blue Jays' second win in 10 games.

"He feels like anything positive that happens to the club is going to be welcome right now," Escobar said. "He feels like winning a series on the road against a club like the Yankees that's definitely a positive and he hopes it can help bring up team morale a little bit."

NHLPA to make counter-offer by end of the week

There is no new deal on the horizon in the NHL's collective bargaining talks.

The union concluded the proposal wouldn't actually see current contracts paid out in full.

Armstrong refers to self as 7-time Tour champ

Lance Armstrong introduced himself as a seven-time Tour de France champion at a cancer conference in Montreal on Wednesday.

"My name is Lance Armstrong. I am a cancer survivor," he said to open his speech to the World Cancer Congress. "I'm a father of five. And yes, I won the Tour de France seven times."

Armstrong announced last week he would no longer challenge the U.S. Anti-Doping Agency's drug charges against him. USADA threw out his competitive victories dating to 1998, which would include all seven Tour wins.

Usain Bolt already has his eyes set on the 2016 Olympics, but the Jamaican sprinting star has some time to fill for the next four years. Bolt says his focus will be lowering his world-record times in the 100- and 200-metres and possibly adding long jump to his repertoire. Scan the code for the story.

Cohon gets Grey Cup ready for wild ride

The Grey Cup will be riding the rails this fall.

Canada's biggest football prize is travelling across the country by train to celebrate the Cup's 100th anniversary.

Wrapped with photos of CFL players and historical images of Canadian football, the Grey Cup 100 Train features a museum car filled with memorabilia.

There is also a team car built to resemble a dressing room and one dedicated to the Grey Cup itself.

The tour will stop in more than 100 communities, including all eight CFL cities, as well as Charlottetown, Moncton, Halifax and Quebec City.

The Cup will also be transported to some communities not accessible by rail, including Iqaluit.

The train departs Vancouver's Pacific Central Station on Sept. 9 and will travel 4,100 kilometres. Its final stop is Nov. 17 at Toronto's Exhibition Station, just a week before the 100th Grey Cup game.

"Every year thousands of Canadians make a pilgrimage to the host city," CFL commissioner Mark Cohon said Wednesday as the train was unveiled at a rail yard in Toronto's west end. "Now we get a chance to bring the Grey Cup to Canadians across the country."

According to Cohon, the tour took two years to organize, including striking deals with Via Rail, CP and CN.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
If you cannot seem to make up your mind about an issue that should be cut and dried by now just choose a path and follow it to whatever destination it leads. Ultimately all roads lead to where you need to go.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
If something that has been going smoothly comes to an unexpected stop today there is no need to panic. All that is happening is that you are being given a chance to reconsider your options. Make the most of it.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
You might be tempted to overlook someone's faults and failings today but only do so if it does not leave you at a disadvantage. It's good to be generous but some people just cannot be trusted. Wise up.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Something you were enthusiastic about just a few days ago no longer seems like such a good idea, but don't walk away from it yet because the planets indicate it still has meaning and value. Give it more time.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
You may decide to let someone off the hook, even though they don't deserve it. The simple fact is you don't have time to chase or chastise them. Hopefully they won't be so stupid as to test your patience again.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Something you are expected to do may not make a lot of sense but do it anyway and then forget it. If the powers that be say it's got to be done then trust them to know what they are talking about.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
You have been a bit free and easy with your cash of late (no change there then!) and will have to make some cutbacks today. You don't have to starve yourself but five star dining is out, for now.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
A project you have been working on for some time is moving ahead at a snail's pace and you may be tempted to junk it. Don't! Today's Sun-Pluto link suggests you are about to enter a more dynamic phase.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Ignore the critics and cynics and strike out in a new direction. One quality you have never lacked is courage, so be brave and be the kind of Sag who tries something new and exciting each and every day.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Once you understand a problem it ceases to be a problem. Knowledge removes all fears. Well, that's the theory anyway and you will get the chance to put it to the test today. Ask yourself: what can I learn?

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Recent upheavals were no doubt shocking but as you are the sort of person who thrives on change you had fun as well. Not everyone was so fortunate though, so you may need to help with some counselling today.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Your luck is changing for the better, though that may not yet be obvious. Today's Sun-Pluto link will catapult you into the limelight and demand that you take a leadership role. Don't be scared. SALLY BROMPTON
